The Sea of Galilee.
Riding by the foot of Hattin, over the place where, 700 years ago, Saladin annihilated the crusaders' power in Palestine, we at length reached a ridge where we looked out on the distant hills of Bashan, and down far below us upon a dark blue pear or harp-shaped sheet of water, lying snugly in a deep enclosure of high brown hills. Though less than 13 miles long and 7 miles broad, yet, measured by the events it has witnessed, it is a kind of Pacific Ocean. It was the Sea of Galilee. As we moved over the long way downward to its level—650 feet below the Mediterranean Sea—we had time to grasp and fix its whole aspect and surroundings. It lacks boldness of outline, for its hills slope gradually back from the shore, or leave a narrow plain, as at Gennesaret and Butia. But the lights and shadows lie sweetly on the hillside at night and morning; the northern end is broken into pleasant little bays, and Hermon looms grandly up beyond, far off, yet seemingly near. The whole aspect of the lake is one that suggests the thought and the lack of beautiful homes. It was still a long ride to the lake. The region we were passing, once brimful of life and activity, was utterly forsaken now. The entire lake lay spread before us, and nearly the whole of its coast line, along or near which once lay the cities Tarichea, Tiberias, Hippo, Gamala, Gergesa, Bethsaida, Chorazin, Capernaum, Magdala, and Beth Arbel. Of these cities Tiberias alone has its ruins of 600; Gamala was able to resist and defeat Vespasian at the head of three legions, and when captured by Vespasian and Titus it lost 4,000 in the fight, and 5,000 who had themselves or were pushed down the precipices; while Tarichea, according to Josephus, was able at one time to furnish 16,500 for slaughter in a single fight with the Romans, 1,200 slain in cold blood in the stadium, 6,000 captive youths to dig for Nero in the isthmus, and 30,400 to be sold into slavery. The only existing visible representatives of all this strength and activity were the wretched little cluster of huts called Mejdal, (Magdala), and the shrunken Tiberias, with its 2,000 inhabitants. From our path not a vestige of the other places could be discerned. It was near sunset when we entered Tiberias. We followed the road through the gate, but could easily have passed through the rents in the walls. The now squalid city has been a chief home of Jewish learning since the destruction of Jerusalem. Here the Jerusalem Talmud was compiled, and here is now what may be called the present theological school of the Jews.—From Egypt to Palestine, Prof. Hartlett.

THE BLACK MILDEW OF WALLS.—At a recent meeting of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, Professor Leidy remarked that in Hardwicke's "Science Gossip," there is an article by Professor Paul, entitled, "Is the Blackness of St. Paul's Merely the Effect of Smoke?" According to the author of the article, the blackness is mainly due to the growth of a hitherto undescribed lichen, which appears to flourish on limestone and in situations unaffected by the direct rays of the sun. Professor Leidy said that his attention had been called a number of years ago to a similar black appearance on the brick walls and granite work of houses in narrow shaded streets, especially in the vicinity of the Delaware river. Noticing a similar blackness on the bricks above the windows of a brewery, from which there was a constant escape of water vapor, in a more central portion of the city, he was led to suspect that it was of a vegetable nature. On examination, the black mildew proved to be an alga, closely allied to what he supposed to be the protozoan viridis, which gives the bright green color to the trunks of trees, fences and walls, mostly on the more shaded and northern side, everywhere in the vicinity of Philadelphia. It may probably be the same plant in a different state; but, until proved to be so, may be distinguished by the name of protozoan viridis. It consists of minute round or oval cells, from 0.006 to 0.009 mm. in diameter, isolated or in pairs or groups of four, the result of division; or it occurs in short, irregular chains for four cells up to a dozen, occasionally with a lateral offset of two or more cells. The cells, by transmitted light, appear of a brownish or olive-brownish hue. In mass to the naked eye the alga appears as an intensely black powder.

I HAVE been a sufferer from catarrh for years. Having tried a number of remedies advertised as "sure cures" without obtaining any relief, I had resolved never to take any other patent medicines, when a friend advised me to try Ely's Cream Balm. I did so with great reluctance, but can now testify that after using it for six weeks I believe myself cured. It is a most agreeable remedy—an invaluable Balm—Joseph Stewart, 624 Grand Avenue, Brooklyn.

R. F. KNOX, 216 King street, Alexandria, Va.

PUBLIC SALE OF VALUABLE LAND IN ALEXANDRIA COUNTY, VIRGINIA.
By virtue of a decree entered at the November term, 1892, of the Circuit Court of Alexandria county, Virginia, in the chancery cause of Castleman vs. Welch et al., therein pending, the undersigned, commissioners for that purpose appointed, will on APRIL 6th, 1893, at 5 p. m., on the premises, offer for sale all of that historic estate formerly owned by Caleb Cushing and containing ONE HUNDRED ACRES, more or less, and located in Alexandria county, Virginia.
This tract of land is improved by a LARGE TEN-ROOM DWELLING HOUSE with basement, large barn with basement, three tenant houses, large orchard, shade trees and beautiful shrubbery, with magnificent view of the city of Washington. This grand place was the suburban home of the illustrious Caleb Cushing who he was in office in Washington, and the trees and shrubbery that he planted there are now in their fully developed beauty. The shape of the land is almost a perfect square, and it is one of the most beautiful, convenient and historic suburban homes around the national capital. It would make a valuable subdivision for town lots and villa sites, being on the proposed lines of electric and steam railroads, only about 2 1/2 miles from Washington, and on a commanding elevation, and in a desirable location.
Terms of Sale: One-fourth cash and the residue of the purchase money in one, two and three years, evidenced by the bonds of the purchaser, with approved personal security, and bearing interest from day of sale, and to be retained until all the purchase money shall have been paid.
For further information apply to James E. Clements, 1321 F street, n. w., Washington, D. C., or C. E. Nicol, Brentsville, Prince William county, Va.
JAMES E. CLEMENTS,
C. E. NICOL,
Special Commissioners.

J. H. H. Young, Clerk of the Circuit Court of Alexandria county, Va., do hereby certify that James E. Clements and C. E. Nicol, commissioners, have executed bond in the penalty of ten thousand dollars, conditioned for the faithful performance of their duties as commissioners in said cause and in accordance with the provisions of the act of the 24th day of February, 1893.
Given under my hand on this 25th day of February, 1893.
J. H. H. YOUNG, Clerk.
